HONGKONG, MONDAY, MAY 2, 1904.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Again it is our pleasant duty to chronicle a Japanese success, and as it is the first substantial success of the land forces of our brave little ally against her formidable and implacable foe the news will be welcomed the more heartily by all who wish that success shall ultimately crown the efforts of the Japanese army in Manchuria. It is too early yet to form a correct estimate of the forces engaged, or the full extent of the Japanese victory; but it is significant that in the first real trial of strength between the opposing armies victory should rest with the Japanese. The crossing of the Yalu has strengthened the strategic position of the Japanese, to whose army the possession of the estuary of the river will be a valuable factor. Moving slowly and circumspectly, the Japanese Commander-in-Chief has waited till he was strong enough to insure an initial success, which will have the effect of inspiring his men with confidence whilst helping to demoralise the enemy. The Russians ought to be convinced by this time that the Japanese are not to be despised as a foe. They have a well-equipped army, are hardy and mobile, and they possess a patriotism and heroic fearlessness of death that will carry them where the dull-witted manjik conscript, without a heart for the conflict in which he is engaged, will not dare to venture. We may take it that the battle of the Yalu presages the advance upon and investment of Port Arthur, but beyond locating the whereabouts of a large Japanese army the details we publish in this issue do not reveal anything of the Japanese general plan of campaign.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

The Russian Commanders.

It is reported that the officers commanding the land forces of Russia are Lieutenant-General Saharow at Yingkow (Newchwang), Lieutenant-General Stoenel at Port Arthur, Lieutenant-General Linewitch at Liowang and Lieutenant-General Naminlow at Fenghwantung.

Korean Envoy in Japan.

Mr. Li Shiyong, Special Envoy from the Empire of Korea to the Imperial Court of Japan, and suite, arrived at Shinjuku on April 18 from Chempoo on the Japanese steamer Kushiro-maru, and were cordially received by the officials despatched for that purpose by H.M. the Emperor of Japan. The party left there for Tokyo on April 25 by train.

Funeral of a Detective.

On Saturday afternoon the funeral of the late Inspector T. H. Gidley, Detective Force, took place. Leaving the Government Civil Hospital at about 3.30, the coffin was carried by eight Police Inspectors to the hearse. Members of the police and detective forces were assembled at No. 5 Police Station, and formed into line when the hearse came up. The cortege slowly wound down Queen's Road, being augmented by various squads until Happy Valley cemetery was reached. Here a large crowd had collected to render last honours to their late friend and comrade. The Rev. C. H. Hocking conducted the burial service, after which six of the deceased's brother officers filled in the ards. Among those who attended the funeral were: Messrs F. J. Baderley (Capt. Superintendent of Police), E. R. Hallifax (Deputy Superintendent of Police), P. P. J. Woodhouse (Assistant Superintendent of Police), Chief Inspector H. G. Bales, Chief Detective Inspector W. J. Hanson, and other members of the Police and Detective Force, as well as a number of brethren of St. John's Lodge, and personal friends of the deceased.

What is a Cough?

A SPASMODIC effort to expel the mucus from the bronchial tubes. A cold causes a more abundant secretion of mucus, and when the lungs and bronchial tubes are inflamed, they are extremely sensitive to the irritation. Unless care is taken, the cold may result in pneumonia, which is swift and deadly. If the cold is a lingering one, the more leisurely but equally fatal consumption may set in. Do not neglect a cold or cough. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is a powerful and pure remedy. For sale by all chemists and medicine vendors. WATKINS, Ltd., General Agents.

OVERWORKED MEN FIND

Wine an excellent tonic. Restores strength and vigor.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Notes by the Way.

The Hongkong cargo ex Barber line s.s. Richmond Castle from New York, will be transhipped to the s.s. Yuen Sang at Manila.

The Takaraka Kerosene Oil Co. pays an interim dividend for the past half-year at the rate of 20 per cent, the net profit being yen 49,000.

No Mediation.

A Berlin telegram says:—The whole Russian Press are rejecting in the harshest way the offer of mediation of the English Press in regard to mediation in East Asia.

The 'Haitian.'

The captain of the Laongmoon reports that on passing Elliot Island he saw a Chinese cruiser on shore. The after part of the vessel was submerged to amidships, while the forepart was high out of the water, at an angle of about 30 degrees.

The War Correspondents.

The Nagasaki Press learns from a reliable private source that 'on the representation of neutral governments, the Russian Government has withdrawn its threat to treat war correspondents on the high seas as spies.'

Useful Work.

It is reported from Shanghai that the Japanese warship Yashima did a useful piece of work for the Japanese, when it discovered and blew up three floating torpedoes, which had apparently originally been laid by the Russians outside Port Arthur but went adrift.

Land Sale.

At the Public Works Department this afternoon Inland Lot 1715, Star Street, 74 ft. x 85 ft. x 49.6 ft. x 50.6 ft., total area 3935 square feet, was put up for sale. The annual Crown rent was $54 and the upset price was fixed at $2361. There was no opposition to the bidder and the lot fell for $2381.

Small-Pox at Nagasaki.

The case of small-pox reported at Nagasaki up to April 20 numbered 266, including 22 recoveries and 42 deaths. There are at present 192 cases under medical treatment at the Takenokubo isolation hospital and the improvised hospitals at Oura. It is said that the number of fresh cases reported daily is steadily decreasing.

Dowager Empress on 'the Bust.'

It is reported from Peking (says the N.C. Daily News) that the Empress Dowager is so much pleased with the bronze statue of herself, which arrived at Shanghai on the 25th April en route for exhibition at the St. Louis Exposition, that her Majesty intends to have a duplicate made and erected in the Puyueh Hall, at the Park Palace.

Golf.

In the Golf Championship of the Colony, now being played on the Happy Valley links, T. S. Forrest beat E. J. Grist, and C. W. May defeated C. M. G. Darnie. It will be some time before the semi-final and final in this tournament is reached. The annual Captain's Cup competition is nearing completion, Dr. Drew is one of the finalists, and will play the winner of the semi-final, J. E. Lee v. T. C. Gray.

Korean Railways.

The Seoul-Fusan Railway, which was originally intended to be completed by the end of this year, has now been arranged to be so not later than the end of October next, by order from the Tokyo Government. If work does not progress satisfactorily in any section, the company is to have a temporary line in such section, so that the whole line of the railway may be opened to traffic simultaneously with the completion of another Japanese railway between Seoul and Wiju, early in November next, thus placing Wiju in direct railway communication with Fusan.

HONGKONG VOLUNTEER CORPS.

Shooting Competition.

The following are the scores of the first and second teams in the competition at Taihang Range for the shield presented by Sir Henry Blake, G.C.M.G.:

(From Our Special War Correspondent.)

TOKYO, April 12.

The condition of affairs in Port Arthur has been well depicted by a resident who has managed to get a letter through to his friends.

'Frankie endeavored to have made,' he says, 'to repair the Retriever, Pallada and Tsarevitch, and the forlorn hope has been conducted under the supervision of an Englishman, who receives $300 per day for his services. All three vessels have been patched up so as to be moved about under their own steam, but it is very doubtful if they will be fit for active service again until they have been docked and thoroughly overhauled. At present, the calculation is to plug them up sufficiently so as to be able to utilise them for harbour defence. They are all badly crippled and literally shot to pieces. The soldiers and sailors are working like Trojans, for they realise that it is a question of life or death to them, and no efforts are being spared to expect a land attack, which it is confidently expected will be made in the near future. Many of the big guns from the ships have been landed and placed in the forts, the shore batteries having so far failed lamentably to come up to expectations. Every man available is working night and day outside the city, helping to throw up earthworks and to place the guns brought from the ships in position thereabout. There is plenty of food, but it is carefully husbanded, for a long siege is anticipated, and already prices are high enough to cause great suffering among the poor peasantry. A cargo of cattle was successfully landed a few days ago, and three more, cattlehips are expected during the next week. The weather is bitterly cold and the population as a whole is completely demoralised. The reverses sustained have driven more than one well-known man out of his mind, and several suicides among military and naval officers have been reported. Attempted desertions have been frequent, and already forty soldiers have been shot for this reason. I should say that there are ten thousand Russian soldiers in the place to-day. What is thought to have been the Japanese fleet has been sighted twice during the past two days, and another bombardment is feverishly awaited. So far, the forts have not sustained material damage, but a large number of business houses have been moved to the ground, and there have been several outbreaks of fire, caused by the shells, which proved troublesome to extinguish. There is enough ammunition here to last a year, even if there were a bombardment every day. The feeling against the Japanese is fanatically intense, and it would have been well for them could they have all got away before hostilities commenced. They are all considered as spies, and are maltreated on the slightest pretext. As an illustration of this, I will mention that companies of soldiers have been told off and instructed to seize every Chinese they could lay their hands on and twist his cue to find out if it were real or if its owner were a Japanese spy in disguise. A dozen of the latter have been discovered and shot on the spot, their bodies being left to rot where they fell.

Such is life in Port Arthur at the present moment, and the main hope of its amelioration is the arrival of Kurapatkin's forces and the Baltic fleet, which is said to be preparing to sail in June. Swiftly of action is what is wanted on the part of the Japanese now, and unless they make a sudden determined attack soon the garrison will be in such a position that it will take long and strenuous effort to subjugate it. Precipitant endeavours are being made, too, to render Vladivostok immune from attack, and though the coast-line between Possiet Bay—where a large Japanese force is said to have landed—is not constantly guarded, the overland route is being patrolled by cavalry details. Entrenchments have been run up in various places, but the Russians do not seem to have over much confidence in their effectiveness, for they are anticipating defeat by pouring kerosene oil upon the houses of the villages in order to bring about their rapid destruction and prevent them falling into Japanese hands, should retreat be necessary.

Since the failure of the Vladivostok forts to return the fire of the Japanese fleet, at the recent bombardment has been ascribed to faulty ammunition—the shells being several times too big for the guns—the troops are not likely to be too sure of the weapons and ammunition with which they are supplied, and there is just a possibility that that accounts for the preparations for defeat instead of victory which they seem to be busily engaged in making. The lack of confidence is also likely to spread amongst soldiers in Port Arthur and elsewhere, for they have been reluctant witnesses of the ineptitude displayed by the fleet, and may possibly come to the conclusion that their own officers and rifles are not to be relied upon in time of stress. Should such a feeling spread, there is not likely to be much fighting when a fight comes, and the Japanese will secure victories less costly than if fanatics were fighting against them.

It will be interesting to watch the effect of the Russian arm, and no less interesting to keep an eye upon that of Japan, for some of the weapons have never been tried before in actual warfare. One would like to give descriptions of the effects of some of the field guns and rifles of Japan, but some anonymous 'reveler' informs me that such a subject is absolutely denied, and that any outline of the same is a most unwise thing to be given at this particular time. It is probable, too, that one would incur the bitterest hatred and condemnation of the censor if one had the temerity to announce to the world at large how many buttons there were on the uniforms worn by the infantry, and how many rounds of ammunition each man carried would be a crime that could not be punished adequately by any sentence in the criminal code of this side of execution with an axe. Every correspondent realises that descriptions of armament and clothing of troops, methods of transportation, and other matters connected with the sending away of an army to war are of the utmost interest to readers; but what can one do when rigid instructions are issued that all letters containing such information will be relegated to the furnace, and the writer, if he persists in trying to get such intelligence through, will probably receive a polite request from the powers that be to pick up his traps and trek to the country whence he came. All the Japanese want one to do is to write anything but what might be called 'intelligence,' and I am proud to think that so far I have succeeded in meeting their desires in every particular. Everyone, of course, acknowledges that Japan is doing the right thing in censoring outgoing newspaper articles, but they cannot understand why she keeps the writers in Tokyo. Japan could let correspondents go without endangering her prospects in the least, for since she has complete control of cable and telegraphic lines and postal arrangements, she could see every line that was written. So far, only fifteen men have got away, and they left only on the 6th instant. But where they are going to they cannot say. No information will be gained them on the subject, and they go upon what might be a blind expedition, for all they know, they might be bound for some uninhabited island or other in the south, and there landed to be got rid of. Such an ending would certainly be humorous, and there are many callous-hearted beings on earth who would be prone to say 'Serve them right!' But such people should remember, and the Japanese Government should have remembered, that something at least is owing to the readers of the world and to the enterprising newspapers who have, at enormous expense, sent their representatives to join the Japanese instead of the Russian army. Even Japanese subjects are writing to the vernacular press pointing out the injustice; but nothing happened until the other day when the Government heard that the correspondents had decided to hold a meeting with a view of arranging to leave the Japanese and go over to the Russians. Then the War Office suddenly woke up to the danger of alienating the sympathy of the world's Press, and sent out a notification post haste that fifteen men from the leading newspapers of Great Britain, America, and the Continent were to be selected to sail in a day or two. Australia was left out of it. The fifteen men are those who have left Port Arthur, but nothing has yet been heard as to when the remaining representatives are to sail.

Meantime, they content themselves with watching the people indulging in hero-worship. Marquis Ito has returned in triumph from his mission to Korea, and more important of all, the remains of the late gallant Commander Hirose, who was blown to pieces by a shell after trying to save a subordinate officer at the second attempt to block up Port Arthur, have arrived in the city.

Before the flag-draped casket containing these remains, people prostrate themselves in reverent humility, and the scene when the casket arrived at the Shimadzu railway station was one of deep impressiveness. All that was left of the noble commander was a piece of flesh about the size of a florin and this was preserved in alcohol by the men who were present in the boat when the commander of the gunboat Odin was blown to pieces by a shell after trying to save a subordinate officer at the second attempt to block up Port Arthur, have arrived in the city.

THE RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

THE BATTLE OF THE YALU.

Russians Outfitted and Beaten.

(From Our Special War Correspondent.)

Tokio, May 1, 3.48 p.m.

From the reports that have come to hand with regard to fighting on the Yalu, it appears that Japanese troops, after a fight on sight of the line, succeeded in turning left flank of the Russian army, and occupied several positions on the left bank of the river without serious loss. In fact, the Japanese losses were not.

Fighting has continued since Tuesday 26th of April, and a battle is now progressing, the Imperial Guards and Twelfth Division of infantry being engaged.

The Yalu river was crossed by the Japanese army in full force at dawn on Friday, the 29th of April.

The troops crossed by pontoon bridges. The shooting of Russian artillery was very poor, and was easily silenced by the Japanese guns, assisted by gunboats. The Russian steamers, which came up to the river and materially helped the Japanese movement.

Japanese in Full Possession of Yalu.

(From Our Special War Correspondent.)

Tokio, May 1, 6.15 p.m.

The Russians are disputing the Japanese advance on the Yalu.

At dawn to-day, the Japanese found that the Russian army had been so disposed as to invite attack. Accordingly, an attacking movement was rapidly developed, the Japanese infantry, supported by their artillery, advanced in magnificent style, undeterred by the Russian fire.

They attacked the Russian position with enthusiastic vigour. They were successful all along the line, driving the Russians from position after position, and occupying the field of battle.

Thirty thousand Russians were engaged.

No details of the casualties on either side have come to hand.

JAPANESE CAPTURE GUNS AND OFFICERS.

Heavy Casualties.

(From Our Special War Correspondent.)

Yokohama, May 2, 2.50 p.m.

A severe engagement was fought on Sunday between the Russian and Japanese forces. The Japanese were victorious and crossed the Yalu, driving the Russians from Antung and Kienlin.

Twenty guns and twenty-eight quick-firing guns were captured by the Japanese.

Twenty-four Russian officers and many men were taken prisoners. The Russians lost eight hundred men, while the Japanese casualties totalled seven hundred.

[Late reports from Japan state that there were 4,500 Russians at Kienlin, 1,000 at a point four miles north-west of Kienlin, 4,000 at Antung, and that between the latter place and Fengwang there were 20,000 of all arms. Kienlin is opposite Wiju, where there is a ford across the Yalu.—Ed. C.M.]

OFFICIAL VERSION OF THE FIGHT.

We have received from Mr. M. Noma, Japanese Consul, the following details of the fight on the Yalu River:—

Tokio, May 1, 7.35 p.m.

General Kuroki reports that on the 26th of April he gave orders to prepare for laying bridges across the Yalu. A detachment of the Imperial Guards and the Second Division attacked and dispersed the enemy on the left bank of the Yalu, and occupied their positions. The casualties of the Imperial Guards were 16 seriously wounded and 9 slightly, while the Second Division had none. The enemy retreated, carrying many dead and wounded with them towards Kienlin.

A Russian cavalry man, who was taken prisoner by the Japanese, says that the 22nd, 23rd and 27th Infantry Regiments of the Eastern Siberian Sharpshooters formed the Russian's vanguard. Lieutenant Senyoloff, commanding the Mounted Scouts of the 22nd Regiment, was found, buried at Wiju. Ninety-five dead horses were found on the field and six live ones were captured. From noon on the 26th until the 27th, the enemy kept up an intermittent fire upon Wiju, but the Japanese army did not answer.

On April 26, two gunboats, detached from Rear Admiral Hasegawa's squadron, ascended the Yalu River, exchanging shots with the enemy at Antushan, which had the effect of silencing them. The detachment suffered no damage.

On April 28, two Infantry Companies of the Imperial Guards encountered the enemy at Hushan, and one section was detached and sent to Situmen, whence the enemy had fled, after leaving five dead. The Russians fired at long range from the neighbourhood of Kienlin upon the Japanese preparative works.

On the following day (29th), the 12th Division commenced bridging the Yalu at Sukuchin, and completed the work early on the morning of the 30th. The army then crossed. From 10.40 a.m. until 1.20 p.m. severe firing took place on all sides, but the enemy were soon silenced.

The Japanese losses were: Officers, five slightly wounded; Non-commissioned officers and men, two killed, twenty-two wounded.

At eight p.m. on the same day, the bridge over the main stream was completed. The Japanese army crossed and advanced upon Hushan. On the same day a detachment of Rear Admiral Hasegawa's squadron advanced below Antungsen, and fought at close range with 400 of the enemy's infantry and cavalry. The Russian Artillery also fired upon us heavily, but after an hour they retreated; there were no casualties on the Japanese side.

On May 1, at day-break we commenced cannonading and silenced the enemy's Artillery on the hill situated to the northwest of Yushukon. At 7.30 all the Divisions advanced for attack, and took possession of the heights extending from Kienlin to the north of Makon and Yushukon by nine a.m.

FURTHER DETAILS.

Capture of Guns.

The following additional telegrams reach us as we go to press:—

Tokio, 2nd May, 11.40 a.m.

General Kuroki reports from Kienlin that on the 1st inst., notwithstanding a stout resistance, the 2nd and 12th divisions and Imperial Guards advanced by three roads, driving the enemy before them.

At 8 p.m., we captured the enemy's line from Antungsen to Sushukon, and the Imperial Guards surrounded the enemy on three sides, and after several fights, captured 20 guns with their horses and carriages, and over 20 officers and many men. The general reserve corps advanced on the Liaoyang road. The enemy's force was composed of the whole of the 3rd Division and the 22nd and 24th regiments of the 6th Infantry division of sharpshooters and Meschinko's cavalry brigade, about 40 field guns and 8 machine guns. The enemy fled towards Fenghuanching. Our casualties are at the most 700. Total booty, 25 quick-firing guns and large quantities of rifles and ammunition. Our heavy field guns were very effective.

A Russian officer who was taken prisoner says that the commanders of both army corps and the division were wounded, and casualties exceeded 800.

Tokio, 2nd May, 12.40 p.m.

Captain Maya reports that detachments, consisting of the two cruisers, the Maya and Uji, and several torpedo boats, ascended the Yalu on the 1st inst., bombarding the enemy. While they were returning the enemy's artillery suddenly attacked the torpedo boats, which silenced the enemy after a severe engagement of thirty minutes. The whole of the detachment returned to Yungangpo without having suffered any casualties.

Our armed launches reached Antung on the same morning and repulsed the enemy's infantry and artillery, after 30 minutes sharp fighting. Planes were seen rising from the town, and a native says that the enemy had fled from Antung after setting fire to the town.

THE JAPANESE FORCES.

Prognostications by 'The Times.'

Writing about the middle of March, the military correspondent of the Times said:—

In view of the fact that the 12th Division has been in Northern Korea for some time and that this unit forms part of the western command in Japanese territory, we should naturally anticipate that, if an army is concentrated in Northern Korea, the remaining divisions of the western command would follow the 12th. The western command, under General Kuroki, includes the 5th, 8th, 11th, and 12th Divisions, and it would be in accord with the existing organization for these divisions to act together. The Japanese system of an army of four divisions is the system of the great military Powers transformed and adapted to the requirements of a maritime nation. The normal army of a nation like France consists of four army corps, and what may be called the quaternary system of organization among many who have experience of handling troops in action, whether applied to the battalion of four companies, the regiment—or, as we call it, the brigade—of four battalions, or the army of four army corps.

The stream of transports is once more setting towards Chi-nan-po, and we can hardly doubt that a forward move will be made towards the Yalu when the concentration on this side is complete. The direction of the main attack is not yet disclosed. The presence of General Linchew at Ni-chwang at this juncture shows very clearly where Russian anxiety point, but Ni-chwang itself can only be one of many landing places if the Japanese bring up in the north of the Liau-tung Gulf. There is, as Lloyd's agent suggests, Kaichow Bay; there is the shore to the west of the gulf, while on the other flank of the Liau-tung peninsula there is Pitsawo, where the Japanese landed in 1894. An army intending to land in this quarter of the theatre of war must be able to transport a strong force rapidly, since the bulk of the Russian army in Manchuria has been steadily accumulating south of Mukden for weeks past and should now be of quite respectable strength.

While remaining in the general intention of retreating towards the interior, if successful in overwhelming strength, the Russians are growing confident as their numbers rise, and evidently propose to make a Japanese advance on Mukden a very costly business. They seem to have entrenched a strong position near Liau-yang, their right flank protected by the river and streams of the Liau delta, while their left is covered by the Yalu forces, which can fall back if outnumbered upon the Motioning position, which is exceedingly strong. If there are 50,000 Russians within hail and all under the hand of Linchew, we can sympathize with his desire to try conclusions. The country is difficult at this season, the roads few and bad, and lateral communication is impossible. In all his speeches he has urged the need for time and patience, and has never deprecated that advised decision which the Russian army has shown in its advance upon ground chosen by the enemy. In such maneuvers the Japanese army in Korea may play a prominent part, while on the other flank there is a Chinese army of considerable strength which may cause considerable trouble to the Russian generals, who are not a little to be envied that China will not throw off the mask once she can do so with comparative safety.

It is not altogether in accord with the views that General Kuropatkin is believed to hold that the Russian army should fight a decisive battle at such an early stage of the campaign. In all his speeches he has urged the need for time and patience, and has never deprecated that advised decision which the Russian army has shown in its advance upon ground chosen by the enemy. In such maneuvers the Japanese army in Korea may play a prominent part, while on the other flank there is a Chinese army of considerable strength which may cause considerable trouble to the Russian generals, who are not a little to be envied that China will not throw off the mask once she can do so with comparative safety.

No one can say what 50,000 Russians may not accomplish on the battlefield if intelligently led, and no one can deny the ill-effects of the severity of the cold, which confronts Japan. But if, as we are told, the Russians think that they, like the Boers, can evacuate a position and fall back at their good will and pleasure from point to point, then it is possible that the procedure may not be so simple as it sounds. The Boers were able to do this because of their superior mobility, but it is the Russian army is superior to that of the Japanese, and it may be that the latter will not be so easily shaken off. No doubt the Cossacks will once more prove their value, but they are far from their native plains, and the burden of the fighting will fall, as it always must, upon the world-renowned Russian infantry.

ROWING AT THE V.R.C.

Two four-oared scull races were rowed off on Saturday afternoon by members of the Victoria Recreation Club. The first race at 3.30 p.m. was closely contested throughout, Rapp's crew ultimately winning by about ten feet, with the third boat close up. In the second race R. Mitchell's crew won as they liked, the other two boats being altogether out of the race. The weather is getting much too hot for rowing, unless the races are started about 5 p.m.

Results were as follow:—

1st RACE.
Thiele—R. Mitchell (stroke), E. P. Musso, A. G. V. Ribeiro, J. H. Seth (bow), and J. Miller (cox).
Rapp—J. Mitchell (stroke), L. E. Lamart, G. Ornduff, W. T. Andrews (bow), and F. Lamart (cox).

KUROPATKIN'S PLANS.

St. Petersburg, April 18.

General Kuropatkin has advised the evacuation of Port Arthur and a retirement of the Russian forces to guard Nanchang and the line of railroad. He says that the stronghold weakens Russia strategically and its disposition will have no final or important effect on the ultimate issue of the war. He advocates a policy of concentration and allowing the Japanese to carry the campaign inland. The general feeling here is one of confidence in Kuropatkin and a disposition is manifest to turn the war over entirely to him.

PORT ARTHUR BLOCKED.

Cienfuegos, April 22.

Admiral Togo has now succeeded in completely blocking Port Arthur. He has silenced the outer land forts and brought his vessels close up to the narrow entrance so that his fire dominates the passage. As only one Russian vessel can pass out at a time owing to the narrowness of the channel it is considered that the present blocking is as thoroughly effective as if the Russian fleet had been bottled by sunken ships in the entrance.

RUSSIA ANXIOUS.

St. Petersburg, April 22.

M. de Witte, Minister of Finance, in response to an official enquiry, has stated that the expense of the war to Russia will by the 1st of June total $100,000,000. He further states that the cost in the succeeding months is likely to be even greater. [In the recent war in South Africa the expenses of Great Britain were almost as heavy as those of Russia in this war. Great Britain then expended about $8,000,000 for a corresponding period.]

Willie Freese Reports Progress.

Mr. Willie Freese arrived back in Shanghai on 23rd April. After giving his impressions to Tientsin and Peking, in which places he seems to have had a capital time, he returns to the N. C. Daily News. Tientsin headquarters to be 'inimense'; the reception given him was of the most cordial description and he was feted everywhere. The Dallas company are now discovering the hospitality and enthusiasm of the northern port, and their visit there will be most profitable. At Peking, Mr. Freese made several attempts to present his entertainment before the Empress Dowager, but Her Majesty has weighed matters on hand. Just now a good deal of attention is being paid to the dispatch of the portrait painted by Miss Carl, which is to be exhibited at the St. Louis Exposition. On its journey through China the portrait is to be accorded similar honours to those which would be accorded to Her Majesty in person. A special baggage railway line has been laid down through the streets of the capital to carry the train with the portrait under escort. The picture is due in Shanghai this week and preparations are already being made by the Chinese authorities to accord it all loyal reception.
